

Who we are

For over 60 years, CPL has provided vital support and services to bring hope, joy and opportunity to the lives of Queenslanders with cerebral palsy and other physical disabilities.

We provide regular support to more than 3100 clients spread across the state throughout their lives to not only meet their specific complex needs, but assist them to participate and make a real difference in their community. An additional 4000 people access our services on an ad-hoc basis.

The vital support services we provide include speech therapy, occupational therapy, physiotherapy, transport, accommodation, career support, support in-home, community access, technology and equipment.

CPL gives particular emphasis to early intervention with children and families, as this targeted support maximises independence and the life opportunities of children with cerebral palsy and other disabilities.

Despite around 80% of our funding coming from the state and federal governments, there remains a considerable 'gap' we need to fill through fundraising initiatives such as corporate partnerships, sponsorships, community programs and donations. Unfortunately, in the area of children's services, this gap is even wider due to growing needs and demands, spiralling costs and diminished government funding. With your help, we can close the gap and widen our support to provide assistance to more children, adults and their families.
